

Don't Miss Assessing Our Security in an Age of Mayhem, a Conversation with Juliette Kayyem on Cybersecurity, Terrorism, and Democracy - Feb. 6, 2017

Please join us for an inside look at the threats and challenges ahead with Juliette Kayyem, former Assistant Secretary for Intergovernmental Affairs at the Department of Homeland Security. Previously, she was Massachusetts Governor Deval Patrick's homeland security advisor, guiding regional planning and the Commonwealth's first interoperability plan, and overseeing the National Guard.

Kayyem currently serves as the Robert and Renee Belfer Lecturer in International Security at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government where she is Faculty Director of the Homeland Security Project. She has served as a member of the National Commission on Terrorism, a legal advisor to US Attorney General Janet Reno, and a trial attorney and counselor in the Civil Rights Division at the Justice Department. Kayyem also hosts a regular podcast entitled The SCIF for WGBH, Boston's local NPR station, and her newest book, Security Mom: An Unclassified Guide to Protecting Our Homeland and Your Home, was published in 2016.
